Wilmington man indicted on 13 felony drug charges

By JAYNE W. MILLER
News Editor

BRENTWOOD, NH - Mark Ferrara, 24, of Hobson Avenue in Wilmington is being held on $50,000 cash bail following his June 4 arrest in Brentwood, N.H. Ferrara received a Grand Jury indictment earlier this month, reports the New Hampshire Union Leader last week.

According to published reports, Ferrara was found with $35,000 worth of steroids in his vehicle while driving on Route 125 in Brentwood. He has been indicted on 13 felony counts of possession of a controlled drug with intent to distribute. Each count carries a prison term of three-and-a-half to seven years with a $100,000 fine.

Major Al Brackett of the Rockingham County Sheriff's Department spoke to the Crier this week.

"We've seen a lot more steroid cases than we have than in the past. In this individual case, the individual had approached an undercover detective and offered to sell drugs to him

Exciting one-to-one computing pilot to classrooms

By CHRISTINE KENNEY

WILMINGTON - The School Committee discussed piloting a 1-to-1 device programs, or utilizing electronic devices to innovatively educate students in certain courses, at its Aug. 22 meeting. According to Neal Ellis, district technology coordinator, the middle school purchased 105 netbooks in June for approximately $363 each, with the devices to be available on carts for students to use during certain, piloted classes. Ellis said his department will need to meet with middle school teachers to garner input on how to operate the program, which he expects to kick off this fall.

"We want teachers who are ready and have been trained to use the device [to participate]," Ellis said. "The devices are going to be a tool for the teachers to help them

Nurses union demonstrate at meeting, seeking community support for pay scale negotiations

By CHRISTINE KENNEY
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - A group of five women came into the School Committee meeting on Wednesday, August 22 holding signs. They took over the majority of the front row, proudly bearing posters for the public to see. Committee Chairman Margaret Kane informed the group that picketing in school buildings is not allowed (town-owned buildings are fine; it is just school property that restricts the activity). The women, all nurses in the Wilmington Public School System, lowered their signs but stayed put through the meeting's completion.

The nurses' act was meant to continuously inform the public about their ongoing negotiation with the School Committee to place them on the teachers' pay scale. On the tail of contract negotiations that have been taking place since February 2011, the nurses and the School Committee will partake in a fact-finding session, or a guided negotiation process implemented when mediation has failed, on Oct. 5.

According to Maureen Travis, a nurse at the West Intermediate School, the school nurses—who are required by law to have a Bachelor's of Science Degree, a certification as a registered nurse, and an initial educators' license issued by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education—are the only group of educators not on the same pay scale as teachers. A transition to the teachers' pay scale would result in an approximate 2 percent increase in pay for the nurses, which the School Committee offered to the group rather than transitioning them to the new scale. But, in turning that following a morning bridge fire in Lawrence that badly damaged Verizon cables. The damage also caused the Wilmington RMV to close for both Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday as network connections were severed in the fire.

WILMINGTON/TEWKSBURY - Buzzing phones lines and disconnected calls stymied residents throughout the Merrimack Valley

By Tuesday evening Verizon was announcing that it had restored service to thousands, but it didn't include the Wilmington

Jewel Drive development began over 100 years ago

Now economy taking toll, forcing property to auction

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - A 220,000 square foot South Wilmington industrial building will be auctioned on Thursday. The building at 1 Jewel Drive, was for more than 20 years the home of Altron, Incorporated. A manufacturer of electronic circuit boards, Altron merged with Sanmina Corp. in 1998. Sanmina closed the plant a few years later.

Jewel Drive is an industrial park off Eames Street in South Wilmington. The land had been subdivided into tiny $5 house lots beginning in 1895 by the Woburn City Land Co. But the company never built any roads, and people were stuck with land they couldn't use. Only one house was ever built.

Most of the buyers simply abandoned the property. Others kept paying their taxes, possibly leaving the property to heirs. In many cases, the town took the land for taxes and then sold it at auction, further complicating the problem.

For the town of Wilmington, it was a nightmare. After decades of abandonment, it was difficult to locate any owners.

The town set about clearing title in the 1950s in an area known as Section D, bordered by Eames Street and two sets of railroad tracks. Assessor Frank Walters and Attorney Paul Emmons worked on that for a few months. Eventually, that site became the home of National Polychemicals, now the Olin hazardous waste site.

But there was more land still to be cleared, an area of about 40 acres known as Section C. In the late 1960s, the town formed the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA), tasked with clearing the title to hundreds of parcels of land, and then turning the land into an industrial park.

By July 1974, the WRA had cleared the titles to all the land in Section C. The next month, the WRA sold the land for $375,000 to the Jewel Manufacturing Co., run by William Myers and Robert Bertwell. The town made a profit of $200,000.

As the developer, it was up to the Jewel Manufacturing Co. to build a 1500-foot road. Thus it became Jewel Drive. Eventually, though, Jewel ran into financial problems and the development was taken over by Marteg, a Rhode Island firm.

The first company to locate in the new industrial park was Altron, Inc., which had been founded in 1970 by Sam Altschuler, Burton Doo and two others. Altron had been renting space on Industrial Way in Wilmington for about five years, where it had about 100 employees. There was a second location in Billerica with 36 employees. Altron broke ground in Sept. 1975 on a 30,000 sq. ft. plant. That building was enlarged many times, and it is that building that will be auctioned on Thursday. The company purchased additional land from the WRA, and also purchased a portion of the old Britt horse farm with frontage on Main Street.

In the fall of 1998, in a $220 million stock swap, Altron merged with Sanmina, a California firm. Sanmina took over the plant, but then closed it in 2002. It was purchased for $4,800,000 in 2006 by Hidden Jewel LLC, c/o Vinco Properties, which has rented space in the building to various businesses. The Assessors Online Database lists an assessed value of $8,098,500.

Clerks gear up for election season

State Primary September 6

By JAYNE W. MILLER
News Editor

WILMINGTON/TEWKSBURY - The state primary is a week away and the town clerks of Tewksbury and Wilmington are preparing for a busy election season leading up to the Presidential election in November. Clerks in both towns are busy managing voter lists, registrations, absentee ballots and much more in advance of next Thursday's election. Complications from a bridge fire in Lawrence that damaged Verizon cables also challenged the Wilmington clerk's office with network connectivity issues little more than a week before the election.

Unlike most other states, in Massachusetts an unenrolled voter may vote in a primary election. Registered democrats must vote on the democratic ballot and registered republicans must likewise vote on a republican ballot, but unenrolled voters have their choice of ballot for the state primary.

Tewksbury Town Clerk Denise Graffeo adds a caveat, "It is important to note, that once an unenrolled voter requests a particular party ballot and the poll workers have marked that party on the voter list, the voter cannot later try to change the party ballot they received. Sample ballots are posted in each polling location."

Looking at the ballots, Tewksbury and Wilmington have similar choices for all but a few races.

On the republican ballot in Tewksbury the only contested race is for Senator in General Court, between Paul Adams, currently a representative, and Alex Vispoli, a selectmen. Both men are from Andover. They seek to challenge Barry Finegold, also of Andover, who currently holds that seat. In Wilmington Bruce Tarr currently holds the Senator in General Court seat, but he is unchallenged this year.

Other races on the GOP ballot include Senator in General Court, Scott Brown; Representative in Congress, Richard Tisei; and Representative in General Court, Douglas Sears. Maura L.P. Ciardiello is running for the 5th district for the Governor's Council. No candidates have been presented for Sheriff, Registrar of Deeds, or Clerk of the Courts.

In Wilmington, Walter Zenkin is running as a write-in candidate in Precinct 3 for the seat previously held by Charles Murphy.

In Tewksbury, Jim Lyons is running in Precinct 3 and 3A for Representative in General Court.

On the Democratic ballot in Wilmington, the only major contested race is a write-in campaign for candidates running in precinct 3 for Charley Murphy's previously held seat.

Murphy vacated the seat but too late to have his name removed from the ballot. Three democratic candidates are vying for the most write-ins on the ballot. Dave Flonda, of Burlington, Virginia Mooney, of Burlington, and Ken Gordon, of Bedford, are all looking for write-in votes. The winner must not only defeat the other write-in candidates and Murphy, but also secure at least 150 votes in order to be placed on the ballot for the November elections.

In both towns there is a primary race for Governor's Council between Donald Bumiller, of Boxford; Eileen R. Duff, of Gloucester; David W. Eppley and George T. O'Brine, both of Salem. Mary Ellen Manning, who has held the seat on the Governor's Council for the 5th district many years, is retiring.

The rest of the democratic ballot shapes up with Senator in Congress, Elizabeth Warren; Representative in Congress John Tierney; Senator in General Court Barry Finegold (Tewksbury - no candidate in Wilmington); Representative in General Court Jim Miceli (for Precinct 3 in Wilmington the write-in candidates and in Tewksbury precincts 3 and 3A Barbara L'Italien), Clerk of Courts Michael A. Sullivan, Cambridge; Registrar of Deeds Richard P. Howe, of Lowell; and Sheriff for Middlesex County Peter Koutoujian.

The Green Rainbow party ballot has no set candidates but will accept write-ins.

The last state primary was in September of 2010. Tewksbury had just an 18 percent voter turnout.

"It is a busy time with the upcoming September 6th State Primary, October 2 Special Town Meeting, and November 6th State Election," said Tewksbury Town Clerk Denise Graffeo. Her office has been working on scanning vital records and incorporating them into the Laserfiche digital document management system as well as implementing the next phase of the digitization of records to include meeting minutes and Board of Appeals and Planning Board decisions into the Laserfiche system over the next few weeks. "I am also working with the BOS, Town Manager and Town Counsel to assist public bodies with Open Meeting Law compliance by implementing new training opportunities."

For Sharon George, Wilmington Town Clerk, the route for records preservation is under research with a decision planned for after the November election. The safe in the Town Clerk's office is outdated and without ventilation, makes long-term preservation of records a concern. She will also begin planning for the FY2014 budget in the weeks following the state election.

Woburn Police issue coyote warning

WOBURN - The Woburn Police Dept.'s Animal Control Division this week reiterated a warning to residents to be alert for coyotes in the city.

Coyotes have been spotted throughout the city, with the most frequent recent sightings occurring in West Woburn, according to Animal Control Officer Jay Donovan.

Earlier this summer, a coyote reportedly killed a pet cat in North Woburn. Coyotes are known to prey on cats and small dogs, and other small animals.

He said the police station has also been receiving calls of foxes, or a fox, in the area.

Residents are advised to not approach coyotes, or any other form of wildlife. Trash and other containers containing potential comestibles for wild animals should be secured with lids. Pets should be also fed indoors, and bird feeding areas should be clean.

The state Division of Fisheries & Wildlife has devoted an entire page to information about coyotes on its web-site:

www.mass.gov/dfwele/dfw/wildlife/living/living_with_coyotes.htm

The Animal Control division at Woburn Police headquarters can be reached at 781-932-4510, ext. 824.

It's Your Money WHO GETS AUDITED?

Overall, about one in every 90 individual tax returns gets audited every year, and that hasn't changed. But audit rates have gone up for the wealthy. For those making $1 million or more, about 12.5 percent - one in eight - were audited in 2011, up from just 8.4 percent in 2010 and about 6.4 percent in 2009.

At the other end of the scale, of taxpayers with incomes below $200,000, only 1.02 percent were audited, slightly less than the year before. Those with incomes between $200,000 and $1 million got scrutiny, too. Almost 4 percent were audited.

Business tax returns saw a boost in audits as well. Corporations will see two rounds of random audits, an IRS official notes. Even small corporations with assets of less than $250,000 will be covered; those with assets of more than $10 million and up to $100 million will be checked also. A sampling of returns for a five-year period, starting in 2010 will be looked into.

Letters to the editor

Write - in Fionda

Dear Editor,
Attention to the 600+ Democrats who live in Wilmington's Precinct 3! Your current state representative, Charley Murphy (D-Burlington), is NOT seeking re-election this year. Due to the timing of his decision, he will be the ONLY candidate listed on the ballot in the Democratic primary on Thursday, September 6. If Charley should get the most votes, then 16 Democratic Town Committee members from Bedford, Burlington and Wilmington will choose the candidate to challenge the Republican contender on Tuesday, November 6.

We CANNOT let this happen. The voters of Bedford, Burlington and Wilmington should decide who will represent them, not 16 party activists! The precinct's Democrats (and Democratic-leaning Independents) must vote on September 6!

I urge you to support write-in candidate Dave Fionda of Burlington. Dave has been endorsed by State Rep. Charley Murphy, State Rep. Jim Miceli, and Chairman of the Wilmington Democratic Town Committee Gary DePalma. (The Committee, itself, does not make endorsements in primaries.) Dave has been - far and away - the candidate most actively campaigning for Wilmington votes, with visibilities, canvasses, phone calls, and appearances at community events and on WCTV. Dave, to my knowledge, is the only candidate with Wilmington roots - having had family live in town and having grown up right on the Woburn side of the Woburn-Wilmington line. From a political perspective, Dave represents the Democrats best chance of keeping 21st Middlesex District "blue." More importantly, from a governing perspective, Dave will "put people first" by working towards economic growth to provide new jobs, fiscal accountability in government, smart growth for our towns, affordable housing for all, affordable health-care for working families, tax and financial relief for our seniors, and quality education in our schools. Learn more about Dave's background and platform at www.writeindave.com.

Every vote counts. Those three words have never been truer than in this race, with a very low voter turnout expected, coupled with virtually unknown-to-Wilmington write-in candidates competing against a popular incumbent who has his name on the ballot, but will not serve if elected. Dave needs to beat Charley Murphy, or at least get so many votes as to send a loud and clear message to the 16 party activists that Dave Fionda is Charley's best replacement. Charley Murphy feels Dave Fionda should be his replacement, and I hope you will too! I urge you to make your vote count and Write In Dave on your Democratic ballot next Thursday, September 6th. Polls are open from 7am to 8pm at the Wildwood School.

Sincerely,
Robert Hayes

Sears responds to Miceli on Day Care bill

August 30th is the anniversary of Rep. Miceli's 35th year in office! Congratulations!

Rep. Miceli wrote here of another milestone: "Miceli Clarifies Details of Day Care Bill."

He says H 3986 (which unionizes day-care workers) is not "the Governor's Bill." He voted for it. Is it "his bill"? Patrick and Miceli are both Democrats. It's a "House Bill"? Ok, I stand corrected. (That's clarifies the "go along to get along" of One Party Rule!)

Miceli roils at the implication that he favors burdening young working families by increasing their cost for daycare. (He implies we don't have those families in the district?)

Miceli "clarifies" that it only affects 6 providers in 19th Middlesex. (What a relief to read that he only votes when the burden on working families falls on other districts!?)

His vote was misunderstood? (Is it really pro-union not anti-non district working families who need day-care vouchers to struggle to join the middle class?)

Votes like these make it hard to believe Representative Miceli is an "independent Democrat" who'd never vote to impose further burdens on working families of Wilmington and Tewksbury!

A reminder to all readers to vote -- State Primary Election on Sept. 6th! Your vote counts.

Doug Sears

Editor's Note: I allowed this response letter because it specifically addresses matters raised in a previous letter that addressed Mr. Sears, though I limited it ONLY to those responses.

As for House Bill 3986, it indeed authorizes child care workers to form labor organizations. It passed the House by a vote of 117 to 32 on May 30, 2012. Rep. Miceli supported the bill. Rep. Murphy and Rep. Adams rejected the bill. Rep. Jim Lyons, who is running for a House Seat in Tewksbury this election also rejected the bill. Votes ran along party lines.

The bill authorizes "family child care providers" to form labor unions. It defines a "family child care provider" as an individual who provides child care services for low-income and at-risk children who receives payments from the state for such services based on a rate structure for voucher and contracted payments.

The bill further authorizes labor organizations to bargain on behalf of family child care providers on issues including, but not limited to, the following: rate structure for voucher and contracted payments for child care services, education and training opportunities for family child care providers, recruitment and retention of family child care providers, and reimbursement and payment procedures.

The bill also prohibits family child care providers from striking or encouraging a strike.

The Lipstick Profiteers

Mary Kay's biggest revenue source may be the dreams of its own pink-clad sales force.

In July, 30,000 Mary Kay ladies flooded the Dallas Convention Center for the company's annual "seminar" — a conference that is equal parts beauty pageant and mega-church revival. They wore cute suits and evening gowns, won piles of glitzy prizes, attended leadership workshops, and gave standing ovations to any video footage of their company's late iconic founder, Mary Kay Ash.

On the surface, there seems to be plenty to celebrate at this upbeat ritual. Mary Kay Inc. boasted a 94,000 increase in new sales force members last quarter. This would be a staggering feat of job creation compared to the United States' 8.4-percent unemployment rate — if only being a Mary Kay lady offered the basics of a real job, such as a steady paycheck.

But it doesn't, as I discovered while reporting "The Pink Pyramid Scheme" for Harper's magazine. In fact, out of the nation's 600,000 Mary Kay sales force members, only around 300 of them earn six-figure incomes. Most of those bigger paychecks come from commissions derived when "downlines," sales force members on the lower rungs of Mary Kay's "Ladder of Success," buy inventory. And those "independent beauty consultants" buy a heck of a lot of the company's lipstick, concealer, and other products.

But how much do those lower-level sales force members earn when they sell all that inventory in the retail market? Even after spending three years reporting on this company, which raked in $3 billion in wholesale sales last year, I can't say. Mary Kay claims not to know how much product the consultants actually sell to retail consumers.

I'm confident that they aren't selling much. The women I interviewed told stories of hosting parties where nobody came, or yielding nothing more than a pity purchase. Meanwhile, their Mary Kay recruiters urged them to front-load their inventory, pushing them to buy more and more potentially unsellable things until they racked up sizable debt.

Even the hundreds of Mary Kay ladies the company honored as its top sellers during its lavish Dallas event only had to place $18,000 in wholesale orders to qualify for the "Court of Sales" designation. In a best-case scenario — where sellers did manage to move all their product and earn a 50-percent commission on the $36,000 retail value — they only earned back $18,000 per year. That's not even enough to bring a family of four past the poverty line.

It's easy to wonder: Who is dumb enough to think they'll make money this way? Indeed, Mary Kay Inc. loves to fall back on the "lots of small businesses fail!" defense when questioned about its high-stakes game. But blaming the women who wind up with basements full of unsold makeup is a cheap ploy — and ignores the power of the Mary Kay sales pitch. When Ash launched her business in 1963, she knew she was selling way more than lipstick.

She promised economic independence and female empowerment with her "Enriching Women's Lives" tagline. It was a pitch that connected with frustrated Mad Men-era housewives — and continues to speak to women today who are wondering how to support their families in a tight economy, but also chafing against corporate workplaces or low-wage jobs that deny them the flexibility or freedom to also be the kind of mom and spouse they want to be.

If the Mary Kay business model worked, it could revolutionize how women — and men, for that matter — think about work. It could end the apparently interminable quest for work/life balance and be a powerful tool for combating unemployment during this recession.

But multi-level marketing models don't work because they are designed to profit off, rather than enrich, their workforce. So Mary Kay promises that "you can have it all," and then sets women up to fail.

Lt. Governor Murray announces new funding for nursing education

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Awards $300,000 Grant to Create More Highly Educated Nursing Workforce

BOSTON - Tuesday, August 21, 2012 - Lieutenant Governor Timothy Murray today announced Massachusetts has received a $300,000 national grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to help current and future nurses seeking to advance their academic preparation within the nursing profession. This funding will enhance the Patrick-Murray Administration's overall plan to support jobs, education and workforce development and helps to address the growing demands and challenges of the health care environment currently facing the country.

Massachusetts is one of nine states chosen to receive a $300,000 grant to support academic progression in nursing. The funds will support the Commonwealth's efforts in partnership with the Organization of Nurse Leaders (ONL), to pursue effective strategies in nursing education. Currently, 55 percent of Massachusetts nurses hold Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) or above. A 2010 report from the Institute of Medicine (IOM), recommended that 80 percent of nurses be educated at the BSN level or higher.

"Massachusetts has been a national leader in providing universal health care for all residents and we continue to address the rising costs of health care," said Lieutenant Governor Murray. "With the support of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, our work to advance educational opportunities for currently practicing nurses as well as new candidates will ensure more nurses are prepared to address patient health care needs in the years ahead."

"This grant will aid efforts to better coordinate the world-class care that the Commonwealth is known for," said Health and Human Services Secretary Dr. JudyAnn Bigby. "Nurses are key members of coordinated care teams, which ultimately deliver better patient outcomes and lower health care costs."

"These funds will further our efforts to create a comprehensive and more aligned workforce development system that meets the needs of our students, employers and Commonwealth as a whole," said Education Secretary Paul Reville.

Specifically, the grant funds will support the ongoing collaboration between the Department of Higher Education (DHE) and the ONL, who are working together to develop "seamless academic progressions" for currently employed and newly credentialed nurses. Currently, Massachusetts community colleges are partnering with state universities and University of Massachusetts campuses to develop pathways for registered nurses who wish to earn bachelor's degrees in nursing. This initiative is helping to prepare nurses to meet 21st century health care challenges that will require them to coordinate patient care amongst a variety of practitioners and agencies, to help patients manage chronic illnesses, and to utilize advanced technology to improve patient outcomes.

"We have made enormous strides in this work because of a highly effective partnership between the Department of Higher Education and the nursing community," said Higher Education Commissioner Richard Freeland. "This collaboration gives us an excellent model of how educators and workforce development partners can work together to produce real change in the lives of Massachusetts residents."

"This is a true leadership story and speaks to what can be achieved in Massachusetts through the power of partnerships," said Sharon Gale, Chief Executive Officer of the Organization of Nurse Leaders. "The government and industry representatives represented on the Massachusetts Action Coalition will shape academic progression over the next two years. This is a beginning toward achieving our shared goals."

The announcement builds on the Patrick-Murray Administration's plan to achieve workforce development goals in four key sectors - health care, life sciences, information technology and advanced manufacturing. One of the primary goals is to better align existing educational and workforce training programs across the state with clearly defined industry-specific pathways to employment. In working across state agencies including the Executive Offices of Education, Labor and Workforce Development, and Housing and Economic Development, the Administration continues to bring together expertise and resources to develop a workforce pipeline aligned with labor market demands.

Thanks from Farmers Market Association

Farewell to nursery school

Dear Editor,

As I sent three of my children off to school this morning, I thought about how quickly time has passed by. My youngest will start kindergarten next week. For the first time in seven years we will not be going to Brookside Nursery School this September. The thought is really very sad and overwhelming. All four of my children were lucky enough to attend Brookside. A few years back, when my husband was diagnosed with A.L.S. and life was looking pretty bleak, Cristina Warren, the owner of Brookside, reached out to help us and ensure that our kids could continue at Brookside. Her caring and generous nature is appreciated more than she will ever know. My kids have thrived at Brookside, and had lots of fun!

We will miss it very much. Have a great year with all the new and familiar families. And to the families new to Brookside, congratulations, you are going to LOVE it!!!

Sincerely, Alice Lydon

Sheriff's Department camp

HUGE thumbs up to the Middlesex County Sheriffs Dept for an awesome FREE camp that my child attended. In this day and age, nothing is free but thank you to Sheriff Koutoujian for keeping this program alive. As a parent, it means a lot to be able to send your child somewhere for a whole week of fun and learning for free, and to know they were safe with a wonderful staff of counselors to attend to their needs. My sincere Thanks for giving my child such a wonderful opportunity.

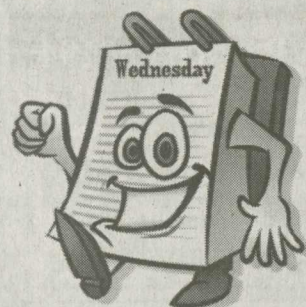

Unhappy with Wilmington Ten

What are the names of the people, with the self-serving agenda, who hide behind the name of the ten resident group?

The people of the town CLEARLY voted by a landslide to build the new high school. Yet these people are causing delays at a reported cost of millions to our town and taxpayers.

They can call themselves what ever they want, but they can't call themselves good citizens of Wilmington. THAT, has been clearly demonstrated by their own actions.

State Police step up patrols

Patrol to focus on Rt. 125 in Wilmington, Andover, and N. Andover

ANDOVER - The Massachusetts State Police Barracks in Andover, effective immediately, is directing a selective enforcement patrol to focus exclusively on Route 125 through Wilmington, Andover, and North Andover. This action is being taken in the interest of public safety in response to traffic concerns raised by community members.

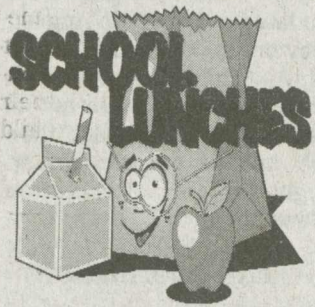

When staffing permits, a selective enforcement patrol out of the Andover Barracks will be assigned to focus on Route 125 in those towns on each of the three daily shifts. Troopers will primarily focus on driving behaviors that contribute to crashes, including excessive speed, improper passing on the right, following too closely, texting and impeded operation, and aggressive and negligent operation.

An elderly couple was killed in a crash on Route

125 last Friday afternoon. The cause of that crash remains under investigation by State Police. Furthermore, area residents have complained about an increased volume of traffic and speeding drivers on Route 125.

The selective enforcement patrols will be in operation until further notice. No further information is being released at this time.

OBITUARIES

Patricia M. Hill

Founded Hill Real Estate with her husband

WILMINGTON - Patricia M. (Rooney) Hill, age 73, of Wilmington, formerly of Tewksbury, died peacefully at home surrounded by her family on August 26, 2012.

Pat was born on January 21, 1939, in Lowell, MA. She was the daughter of the late Patrick and Annie (Patterson) Rooney and the youngest of seven siblings. Pat was raised and educated in Wilmington and was a graduate of Wilmington High School with the class of 1956.

Pat married Edward C. Hill in 1957 and the couple moved to Tewksbury where they lived for nearly 30 years and raised their children. Pat loved being a mother, she was very involved in her children's lives from school and sporting events to extra-curricular activities Pat was always there to lend support. She was very proud of her family.

"Family" was something that was not taken lightly where Pat was concerned. She loved her family and extended family unconditionally. Pat was so excited when she became a "Nana." When she talked of her grandchildren you could see the smile all over her face. They were a bright light in her life, and she cherished every moment she spent with them.

Family holidays and vacations were always an adventure, and Pat believed "the more the merrier." Pat loved to decorate the house inside and out for every holiday. Halloween was her favorite, and most of the time she was the one to dress up and have fun with the kids. Pat's family has many fond memories of summers on Plum Island at the family cottage, Hampton Beach, and the many cruises that were taken with family and friends.

Pat had an incredible work ethic and was very organized. She and her husband founded Hill Real Estate in Tewksbury at which they worked for many years. Pat was always helpful and friendly, and she had a good rapport with the clients. Pat also enjoyed being involved in building houses, doing the landscape, and sub-contracting. She was surely a multitasker in every way.

Pat was a giver, and if you needed help Pat could always be counted on to lend a hand. She had endless energy, and she was willing to share whatever she had. Pat was extremely friendly, and no one was a stranger for long. She made many friends over the years wherever she went. Pat will be fondly remembered for her kindness, her caring ways, and her unwavering devotion to her family and friends. She will be greatly missed.

Patricia was the wife of Edward C. Hill, devoted mother of Eddie Hill, Jr. of Newburyport, Patty Cushing and her husband Larry of Wilmington, Tommy Hill of Rockport, Ann Arsenault of Colorado, Mary Sullivan and her husband Marty of Arizona, Elaine Raposa and her husband Greg, and Susan Aja all of Newburyport, and the late Joseph Leahy Hill. Loving "Nana" of Christie, Eddie, Courtney, Joseph and Caitlin Hill, Patrick, Lauren, Peter, and Thomas Cushing, Karoline and Stephanie Hill, Katie Arsenault, Kelly, Kyle, Kevin, Keith, Kimberly, Kathryn, Kristen, Kameron, and Kara Sullivan, Joshua, Tyler, and Zachery Raposa, Max and Wes Aja, and great-grandchildren Reese Beauparlant, Jayme Hill, and Sophia Del Plato, daughter of the late Patrick and Annie (Patterson) Rooney, sister of Mary Pilcher of Tewksbury, Alice Sullivan of Wilmington, Margaret Hansen of Whittier, CA, Daniel Rooney of New Hampshire, Gerald Rooney of Acushnet, and the late Martha Gray, Patricia is also survived by many brothers and sisters-in-law, nieces, and nephews.

Family & friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Thursday, August 30th at 10:00 a.m. followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Dorothy's Church, Main St., Wilmington at 11:00 a.m. Interment to follow in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington. School free and reduced meal applications

Applications for the free and reduced meal plan for the National School Breakfast and Lunch Program are available on-line by visiting the school district website. www.tewksbury.k12.ma.us

The process can be done anywhere Internet service is available and takes less than five minutes to complete. You then simply send the completed application to your child's school or mail it directly to Tewksbury Schools - Food Service Department, 139 Pleasant Street, Tewksbury. Applicants approved for the program will be notified in writing within 10 working days; approval is valid for one school year.

Children who receive SNAP or TANF benefits are also eligible for the free and reduced meal plan.

Foster children will receive free benefits regardless of the child's personal income or the income of the household.

Households with children who are considered migrants, homeless, or run-away should contact the district liaison 978-640-7800 complete eligibility information and is signed. Once approved, meal benefits are good for the entire school year.

A complete information packet will also be distributed to each student the first week of school. Please feel free to contact the Food Service office at 978-640-7822 should you have any questions or need additional information.

This is the time to clean out those files and shoe boxes. Bring your dated bank statements, old tax returns, and don't forget the love letters to be shredded on site. The shredding service is free to the public (funding provided by The Friends of the Wilmington Library.)

In addition to the shredding truck, over thirty non-profit groups serving Wilmington will be present providing fairgoers the chance to learn about services and volunteer opportunities. Many organizations will have gift baskets and gift certificates to raffle and select vendors from the Farmer's Market will be selling their wares. A roving magician, a henna artist,

During fair hours, the library will be collecting "Wilmington Memories." Residents are encouraged to stop by the library and RMV, which had a line of unhappy motorists standing in the rain wrapped around the building by 9 a.m.

Debby of Wilmington was near the front of the line hoping for an appointment to work on a salvage title having been defeated in Monday's office closure.

"One person told me there were 100 people waiting in line at one point yesterday," Debby told the Crier.

Vincenza Raffaele of Reading was waiting for a license renewal before being turned away by one RMV employee who merely stuck his head out the front door to tell just those at the front of the line the office wouldn't open Tuesday as well.

Those in line were directed to branches in Lowell, Revere, and Haverhill.

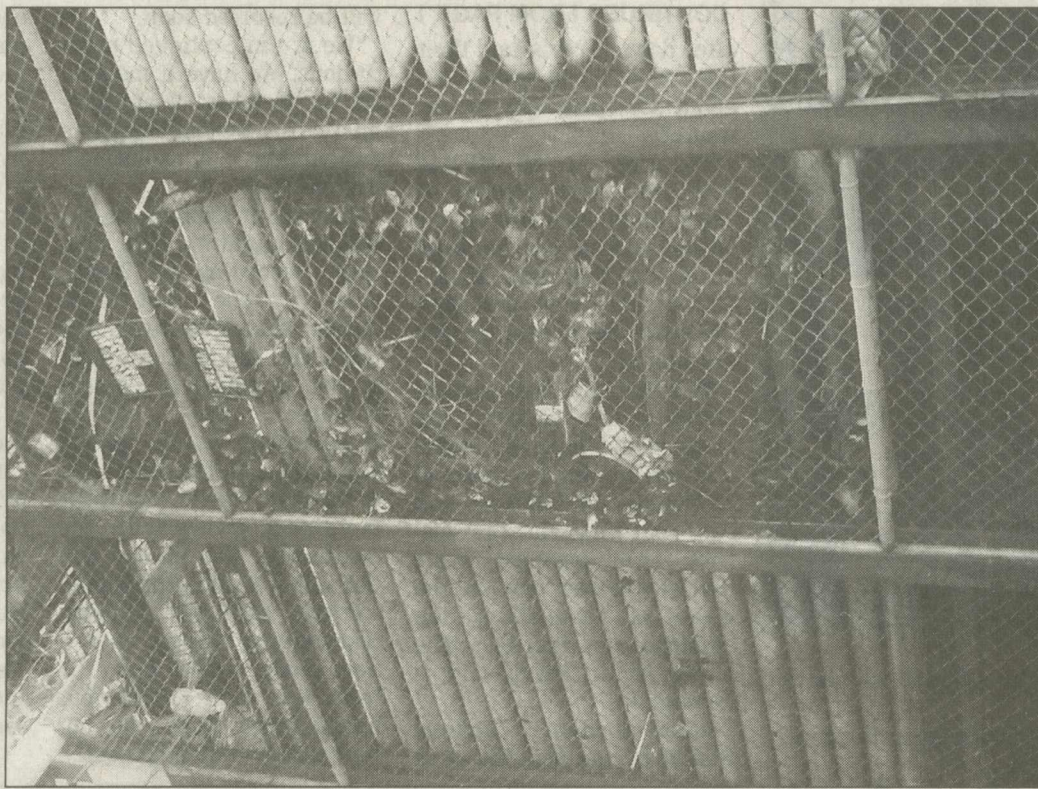

"We were hoping we would be open today," said Sara Lavoie, spokesperson for the Massachusetts RMV.

"Customers should try to see if they can complete their transaction online, and the RMV has a customer service line that allows several transactions over the phone. Customers can also call that line and find out if a specific branch is open."

The new RMV customer number is 857-368-8000. Wednesday the RMV announced that it expects all branches to be open Wednesday.

Lavoie told the Crier that the staff scheduled to work at both the Wilmington and Lawrence branches were distributed throughout the system, going mainly to Lowell and Revere branches to help manage the overflow in those locations.

When asked why the Lawrence fire was able to shut down the Wilmington and Lawrence branches, Patterson said in an e-mailed statement, "Data and Voice Networks are complex systems of interconnected devices that send information over circuits that can be cable, fiber or even microwave. Our Wilmington office of the RMV is connected by a circuit to the damaged fiber in Lawrence. Information will not flow into the Wilmington office until the fiber (in the conduits) is repaired. In other words, the RMV is unable to access customer information already in our database and also unable to input new customer information."

The fire occurred under the Central Bridge on North Canal Street in Lawrence early Monday morning, damaging Verizon cables.

According to Verizon spokesman Phil Santoro, Verizon crews worked through the night splicing new cables and restoring service for customers who live and work primarily in the Lawrence and North Andover areas.

"These men and women are doing yeomen's work under difficult circumstances to bring as many of our customers back as quickly as possible," said Allison Cole, Verizon president of operations in New England. "And they won't stop until every one of our customers is back in service."

Some Verizon customers in Andover, Lawrence, Littleton, Methuen, North Andover, North Reading and Tewksbury have lost some Verizon services as a result of the fire. Also, voice and data services for some business and government customers, including the Registry of Motor Vehicles, may be affected. Customers in other communities may be impacted as well.

"Verizon crews worked through the night and made very good progress on restoring service for our customers," said Cole. "We have already restored critical network operational and surveillance circuits, high-capacity fiber backbone circuits, and worked with state and local officials to ensure that all 911 services are fully operational in the area."

Santoro explained that the work to restore service is complex, given that technicians are splicing thousands of individual copper and fiber optic connections.

and that's how it got started," explained Brackett. Investigators pulled Ferrara over in the northbound lane of Route 125 around 2:45 p.m.

According to the Union Leader Sheriff's Deputies with the drug task force found 8,000 pills of various steroids in the vehicle and seized an estimated 1,090 milliliters of injectable steroids, $1,100 in cash, and hypodermic needles during a search of the car. Ferrara was the target of a three-month investigation, which included assistance from law enforcement agencies in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, the Sheriff's Department said.

Deputy Wilmington Police Chief Robert Richter confirmed that Wilmington police searched Ferrara's Hobson Ave home based on a search warrant. According to published reports, police found $47,000 in cash along with another cache of steroids and an estimated 200 hypodermic needles. Police also reportedly found 360 milliliters of human growth hormone and more needles.

A spokesperson for the Rockingham County District Attorney's office told the Crier that Ferrara waived arraignment. He is scheduled to appear in court for a structuring conference on October 2, at 8:30 a.m.

teach students and for students to develop content."

Proponents say the usage of devices in education carries a variety of benefits. Ellis lists the ability to access curriculum-supporting material online; the ability to interact with peers internationally about lesson plans; turning in assignments digitally; and having immediate answer to quizzes and tests available to teachers as just a few benefits; he notes there are many more.

While the middle school is on its way to finalizing a program, the high school will need technological infrastructure put in place to be able to offer a similar program.

At the meeting, Ellis suggested the best approach to coordinating a program at the high school would be to dedicate one section of the school—he suggested the Adam Street wing—to be the designated area for the program, meaning only that section would need to be updated with internet infrastructure. It was also discussed to implement a "bring your own device" program, rather than purchasing a mass amount of devices for students to use. Requesting students bring their own devices—which can be a laptop, tablet, e-reader, or android device—would be a significantly cheaper option for the school district, although some devices will be purchased to allow students who do not own or cannot afford a device to participate.

Ellis suggests the rationale in deciding to implement the "bring your own" program was quite simple.

"In this scenario, students supply their own devices for use in school, and we would provide the network architecture for students to access the internet and other online resources. Given that most students already have a device, [in a different scenario,] parents would have to pay for a second device through their taxes for a device that the school issues their child. That doesn't make sense when instead the student could just bring in what they have already."

When asked, Ellis said he did not know the cost just yet for installing the appropriate infrastructure at the high school.

Margaret Kane, School Committee Chair, said she was relieved by Ellis' suggestion because there had been talk of purchasing iPads for students to use, which is an expensive venture. She did note, however, that iPads have applications specific to educational tools. Burlington High School's usage of iPads was brought up, but School Committee members questioned the gain of implementing iPads over cheaper options, such as the program Ellis had suggested.

"We've been patient, learning from the successes and failures of early adapter districts around the state," Ellis said, later adding, "It's not that we don't like iPads because we do...It's just that if we are to spend $400 on a device, we want to get our biggest bang for the buck and that would exclude the iPad."

Although students will be protected by a firewall when accessing the internet at school, a question was raised about how school staff can regulate what students may have already downloaded onto their devices; Ellis explained it was not something that could be regulated.

He hopes the program will be ready for implementation at the High School by the Spring of 2013.

Also at the School Committee Meeting

School committee members also unanimously approved the professional development book and plan for the upcoming school year, as well as the district curriculum accommodation plan.

Additionally, Superintendent Joanne Benton gave the committee an update on the new high school building project, which was delayed for a second time in August due to resident appeals to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). The appeals were filed against the DEP's superseding order of conditions, which overruled residents' previous appeals to the project, claiming it does not comply with stormwater standards, among other complaints. Benton announced a hearing is scheduled for October 23.

"I'm hoping that we can conclude this sooner rather than later and be able to begin construction this year," Benton said.

Raising the stakes

offer down, Travis said their fight is not about money; it's about the principle of the matter.

"We want to be treated with the same respect as every other educator in the school system, and we want to be on that pay scale," Travis said, who describes the scale differential as discriminatory.

With that said, being transferred to the teachers' pay scale would have its financial benefits for the group of 12 nurses—10 full-time and two part-time—in the district. The teachers' scale partially bases pay on the level of education the employee has reached. The nurses' scale, Travis said, is one-fits-all.

Superintendent Joanne Benton is confident the issue will be resolved soon.

"We are in continued negotiations. We have a meeting set for October. I am optimistic that we can come to a reasonable solution," Benton said.

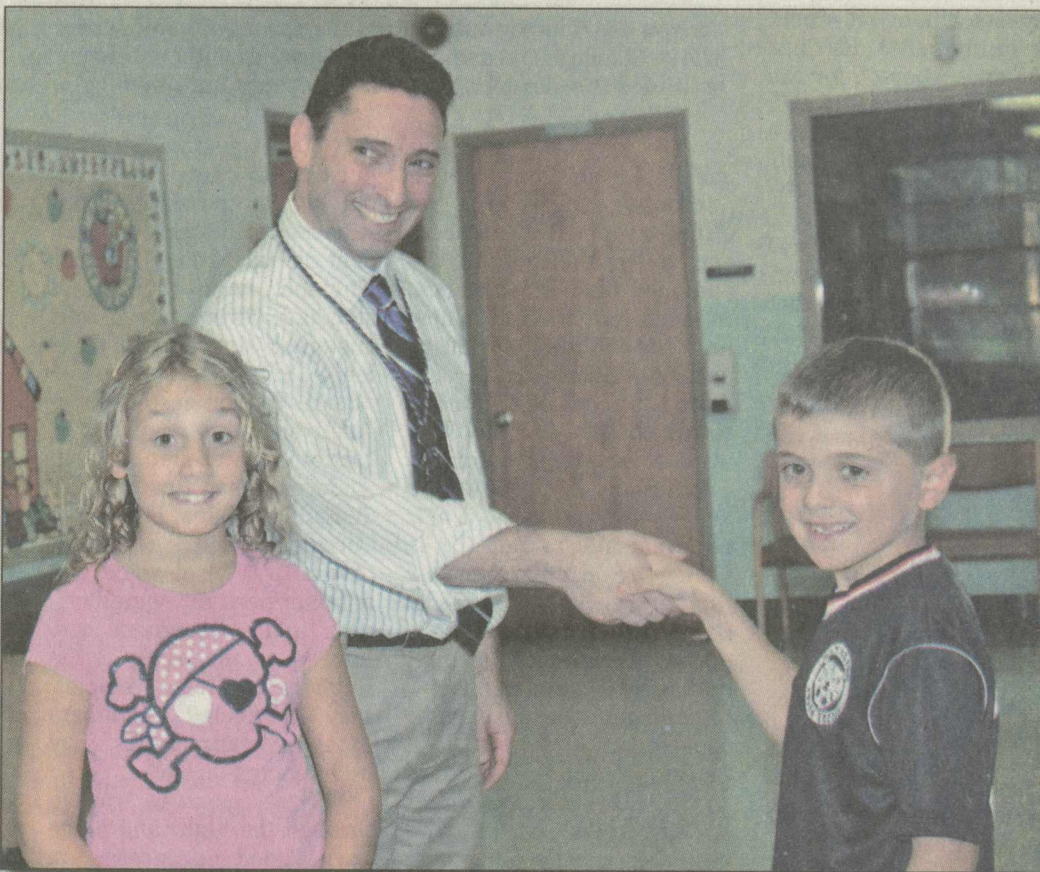

However, it appears even a solution might not be a solution. According to Travis, even if the fact-finder decides the nurses are in the right, the School Committee is not required to comply because the School Department is a public employer. On the other side of the coin, Travis says if the fact-finder sways with the committee, the nurses will not stop pursuing the issue.

Travis said she expects transferring nurses onto a new scale would cost the town less than $15,000, but because the scales do not necessarily match up neatly, she acknowledges it could potentially cost slightly more. She argues the town is spending large sums of money to defend its case in front of the fact-finder.

In preparation for the session, the nurses have started a public awareness campaign, hence the signs of protest at the committee meeting. Travis said the goal is to gain support from parents and other community members regardless of the fact-finding outcome.

According to Travis, the only surrounding towns that do not have nurses on the same pay scale as teachers are Tewksbury and Burlington. Billerica, Woburn, Reading, and North Reading, Travis said, do include nurses on the teacher scale.

Upcoming in TC Sports Pages

Now that the summer is just about over, and Labor Day is just around the corner, that means the Town Crier Sports Pages will once again be filled with all of your favorite high school sports, whether it's from Wilmington High School, Tewksbury Memorial High School or Shawsheen Tech. This year things are a little different, especially in Tewksbury with its brand new high school. The Town Crier will feature the new state-of-the-art gymnasium, as well as all of the other new features that the high school provides.

Speaking of new high schools, Wilmington is in its stages of having a new one, thus the fall season seems to be still in place with all football and night soccer and field hockey games still being played at Alumni Stadium, but the future of the winter season with the basketball teams is up in the air depending on when the current gymnasium is torn down.

As for the Town Crier, we will continue our very extensive coverage of all of the high school sports teams starting next week. We will have team previews on every varsity team, feature stories on local athletes and several new coaches taking over, as well as many other interesting stories.

The TC has hired two new sportswriters who will also continue our trend of featuring the local collegiate athletes, which we have done for many years now. We will also have quite the extensive display youth sports, whether it's football, soccer or hockey. We once again ask that all youth coaches or parents submit their write-ups and pictures every week and have them emailed to: jamiepote@hotmail.com, and we ask that they are sent in by Monday evenings.

In addition, we will still have our outstanding coverage of Shawsheen Tech Sports by Mike Ippolito, as well as new Cookie Jar columns by Rick Cooke, and various other columns, features and regular stories by the entire TC Sports Staff.

And of course who can forget the wonderful pictures from our photographers including Joe Brown, Maureen Lamoureux and Denise Blair.

If you have comments, suggestions or just regular feedback to the stories and pictures in the Town Crier Sports Pages, we ask you to send an email to the same address at: jamiepote@hotmail.com.

Several locals to take part in Jimmy Fund Walk

On Sept. 9, seven residents from Wilmington will walk up to 26.2 miles along the historic route of the Boston Marathon* in the 24th annual Boston Marathon* Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai. They will be among the 9,000 walkers expected to participate with the collective goal of raising more than $7.5 million to support lifesaving adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The seven Wilmington residents include Tracy Arvanitis, Cathy Beers, Beth Belt, Stephanie Corbett, Theresa Corbett, Steven Grant and Michael Pizzotti.

The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk is the largest single-day participatory event benefiting the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber and has raised nearly $80 million since its inception in 1989 to conquer all forms of cancer. The Boston Athletic Association has supported the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk for the past 24 years.

Participants may choose to walk one of four routes: the entire 26.2-mile Hopkinton to Boston route, the 13.1-mile Babson to Boston route, the 5-mile Boston College route, or the 3-mile route starting at Dana-Farber's campus. Those unable to participate on Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk day can become "Virtual Walkers" and still fundraise for the event.

Walkers begin in Hopkinton between 5:30-7:30 a.m.; at Babson College between 8:30-9:30 a.m.; at Boston College between 10 a.m. and noon; and from Dana-Farber at 1:30 p.m. The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk finishes at Copley Square in Boston, where walkers can celebrate completing the course and enjoy complimentary food, beverages, a speaking program, and entertainment.

All walkers must raise a minimum of $300, and walkers 12 years old and younger have a fundraising minimum of $100. Pacesetters are extraordinary fundraisers who raise $1,250 or more. Young Pacesetters are children 12 years old and younger who raise $500 or more.

Under 16 Softball team wins again

The Tewksbury Girls Softball U16 Travel Softball team ended the 2012 travel season just as it started with a convincing tournament win. Recently, Tewksbury won the 23rd Annual TGSL End of the Year tournament. Tewksbury dropped its first game in a heartbreaking loss to Methuen on Friday night. To only go on a six game roll from there on. Saturday morning they beat the NH Mystics 10-1, Westford Waves 7-3 in extra innings and MetroWest Diamond Dawgs 8-0 to become the No. 3 seed on Sunday.

The Tewksbury girls had to take on Sunday as they have done all year long with their backs against the wall. They would beat The Mass Pride 8-0 and then The Silver Lake Strikers 14-0 before entering the Championship game against the NorthEast Storm who had a 5-0 record and had only gave up one run in those five games to that point.

It was a back and forth game before Tewksbury took the lead in the top of the final inning and getting the Storm to go down in order for the first time of the game to claim the championship, 6-5.

The U16 girls ended the 2012 season winning four of the seven tournament championships, including the team's second Massachusetts State Championship title this past July, ending the team's overall record of 37-6, while out scoring their opponents 349-111.

WEEI/NESN Jimmy Fund Radio-Telethon raises more than $3.3 million

BOSTON - The 11th annual WEEI/NESN Jimmy Fund Radio-Telethon on August 21 and 22 raised more than $3.3 million to support adult and pediatric care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston. Contributions came in from all 50 states and around the world to help in the fight against cancer. The event has raised more than $31 million total since its inception in 2002.

"We are so grateful for the generous support we've received again this year from the community. All of the money contributed during the past two days will be critical in the fight against cancer and we are humbled by this outpouring of kindness," said Suzanne Fountain, Director of the Jimmy Fund. "We are incredibly grateful to WEEI and NESN and the Boston Red Sox for standing with us each year and for sharing this event with so many of their listeners, viewers and fans in New England and across the country."

The 36-hour Radio-Telethon broadcast on WEEI 93.7 FM/850 AM Sports Radio Network and New England Sports Network (NESN) live from Fenway Park has become another summer tradition for the Jimmy Fund and the Red Sox. The event featured compelling interviews with Dana-Farber patients, researchers, doctors and staff and video vignettes. Several Red Sox players made on-air appearances, including Dustin Pedroia, Clay Buchholz, Adrian Gonzalez, and Jimmy Fund Co-Captain Jarrod Saltalamacchia. On Wednesday, the entire Red Sox team dropped in to show their support for the Jimmy Fund and to meet with some patients. <http://www.jimmyfund.org/eve/event/redsox-radio-telethon/default.html>

Jimmy Fund by holding on-field ceremonies before both games against the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim. Prior to the start of the game on Tuesday, the Red Sox remembered Johnny Pesky, the beloved, former Red Sox player and a major Jimmy Fund supporter, who died at age 93 on August 13. Singers Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis, Jr., of the 5th Dimension, sang the national anthem and a musical tribute to Pesky.

During the pre-game ceremony for Wednesday's game, the first pitch was thrown out by Janet Schwartz and Melvin Perlmutter, the mother and grandfather of Todd Schwartz, a Jimmy Fund Clinic patient who passed away in 2002 at the age of 19.

"Each year the Radio-Telethon brings us stories of incredible courage and ground-breaking research that continue to show us why the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber are so special and this year was no exception," said Jason Wolfe, Vice President of Programming at WEEI. "These two days were as emotional as any we've experienced and we are so proud to have been a part of another huge success that will provide the necessary funds to bring new and better treatments to so many who need it."

"We continue to be inspired by the stories shared during the Radio-Telethon by the patients, families, nurses and doctors who have touched us all in a very special way," said Sean McGrail, NESN President and CEO. "The overwhelming donations will provide Dana-Farber Cancer Institute the additional resources necessary to research and develop a cure for so many in need."

It is not too late to make a gift! Donors can still call 1-877-738-1234 or visit www.jimmyfundradio-telethon.org to support the WEEI/NESN Jimmy Fund Radio-Telethon.

Lots of Love Cat Rescue

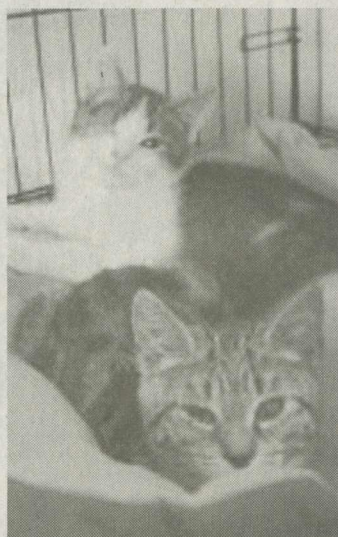

Captain & Morgan

WILMINGTON - Come aboard and meet our pirate kittens, Captain and Morgan. Upon laying eyes on them, you might want to shout, "Well shiver me timbers!" because together, these adorable mates share a pair of eyes.

That's right, Captain has the left one and his sister, the right one. However they can run with the best of them, with their amusing kitten energy. Before they were saved, both cats lived a harsh outdoor life with constant pain from infected eyes. Because someone spotted them and took action, they became the lucky ones. Both kittens are healthy and stunning. Captain with his beautiful blend of dark/light gray and white fur.

While his right eye had to be removed, due to infection, his left eye is fine.

Morgan has gorgeous marmalade chocolate and black markings. Her eye was painfully infected and although her left eye is blind, her right one is fine. At about six months young and healthy, they're fine with the cats and dogs they live with.

Captain and Morgan - the pirate kittens.

This adorable crew needs just a little encouragement to rid away their shyness.

Once scooped into your arms, they settle in nicely. And with a little training, both can learn how to be lap cats and just may stick to you, barnacle style. Going together would be nice, but will do fine apart too.

Even though they don't require any special needs, people overlook cats with disabilities. We save them from a horrible life and then worry will anyone want the "special needs" ones? There is something very special about having that overlooked cat and you will be rewarded with all their hidden treasures, just waiting to unfold.

For an adoption application or to see our other adoptable kittens & cats, visit www.lolcr.org or email at LOL_CR@hotmail.com; or call 781-850-6684. Much needed donations are tax-deductible and can be made online, or mail Lots Of Love Cat Rescue, P.O. Box 396, Wilmington, MA, 01887.

Car seat safety tips from the Brain Injury Assoc.

Motor vehicle injuries are the leading cause of death among children in the United States. According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), making sure children are in age and size-appropriate safety seats can reduce serious and fatal injuries by more than 50 percent. Parents are responsible for ensuring their child's safety during travel.

"Child car seat safety is very important," says BIA-MA's Manager of Prevention BJ Williams. "If a child's car seat is not installed and used properly, the risk of injury greatly increases and the seat becomes useless for safety purposes."

Using a child safety seat is the best protection you can give your child when traveling by car or vehicle. In Massachusetts, children are required to use car or booster seats until they are 57 inches tall or at least eight years old.

Here are tips for keeping your child safe while riding in a motor vehicle:

Make sure children are properly buckled up in a seat belt, booster seat, or car seat—whichever is appropriate for their age, height and weight.

From birth through age 2, children should ride in a rear-facing car seat that is harnessed by the back seat's safety belt until they reach the height and weight limits for the car seat.

Between ages 2 and four and/or 40 pounds, children should ride in forward-facing car seats such as convertible or combination seats.

Children should ride in booster seats in a vehicle's back seat between ages 4 and 12, or until they reach 57 inches.

For the best possible protection, children should ride in the back seat until they can drive. Seat belts should lay low and flat across the hips and upper thighs with the shoulder harness across the chest.

Always follow the manufacturer's installation instructions on your child's safety seat. Have your safety seat checked by a Certified Child Safety Seat Specialist. Many police and fire stations have certified individuals.

For other information on properly installing a car seat or getting your child's seat checked, view BIA-MA's Brain Injury and You: Car Seat Safety webcast at www.biama.org/webcast-series.html

"Children learn by example," adds Williams. "Set the example and always use your seat belt when driving or riding in a motor vehicle."

For tips on booster seat safety, teen driving, pedestrian laws, and more, call the Brain Injury Association of Massachusetts at (800) 242-0030 or visit www.biama.org.

The Brain Injury Association of Massachusetts (BIA-MA) is a private, non-profit organization that provides support to brain injury survivors and their families, offers programs to prevent brain injuries, and educates the public on the risks and impact of brain injury. The association advocates for legislation to prevent brain injuries, including seatbelt and helmet laws.

Help crown Reading as the Healthiest Town in Eastern Mass

Hometown Wellness Showdown kicks off September 17

READING - Is Reading the healthiest town in Eastern Mass? Find out by signing up for the Hometown Wellness Showdown, a four-week wellness event packed with prizes, tips on exercising and eating well and much more! Sponsored by YMCA of Greater Boston, boston.com and Lose It!, the Boston-based diet and exercise app, the Showdown is free and runs from September 17 through October 12, 2012. Registration opens September 7. For more information and to register for the Showdown, visit boston.com/getmoving or ymcaboston.org.

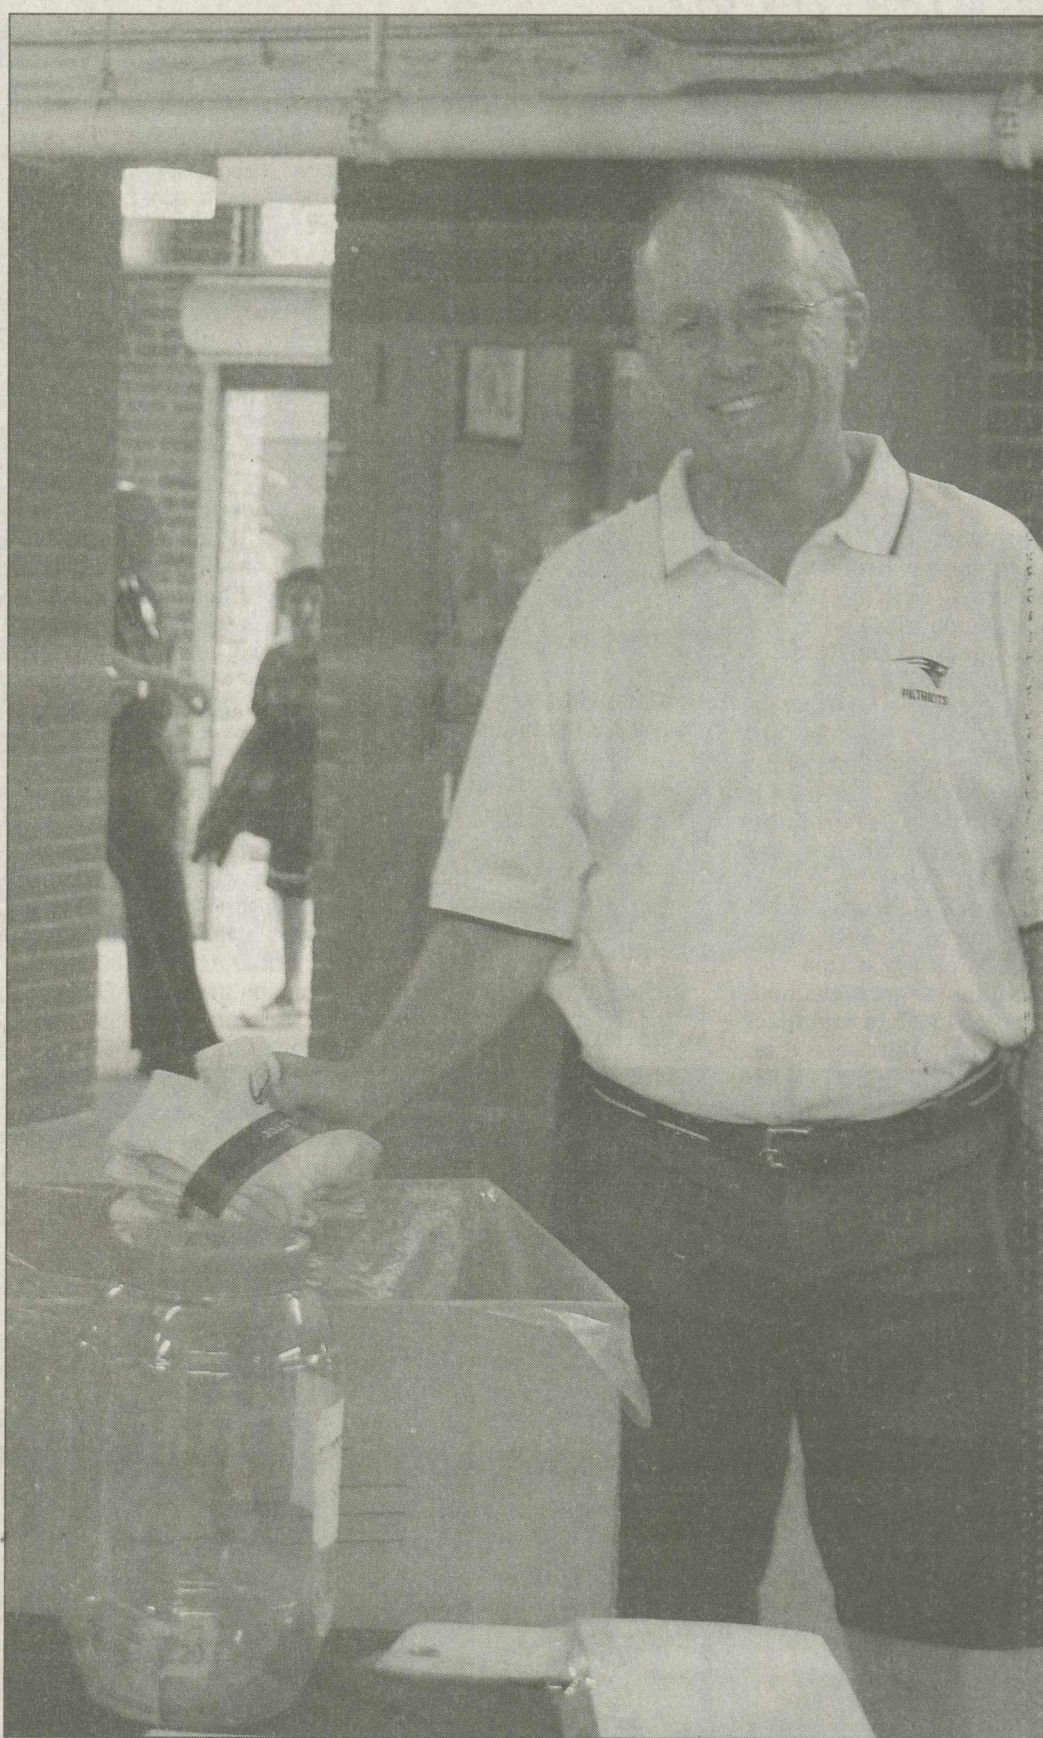

To participate in the Showdown, individuals register and choose their hometown and their local YMCA (we'll also crown a healthiest Y), earn points for logging exercise and healthy meals and snacks on the Lose It! app or website (www.loseit.com). Points count toward the participant's town and YMCA totals. The leader board for the Showdown is displayed daily on boston.com/getmoving. The town and YMCA with the most points will be crowned the healthiest. Plus, each week, active Showdown participants are entered into a drawing to win hundreds of prizes including Y memberships, Fitbit pedometers and wireless scales, Health O Meter scales, Oster My Blend Blenders and New Balance gift cards. New Balance is also offering 20% off at participating retail stores for Showdown participants and Y members.

YMCA members have the opportunity to earn more points during the Showdown by working out in Y fitness centers, taking hundreds of free group exercise classes and participating in the Y's free "Get Started" coaching. To help make the Y accessible to all, the YMCA of Greater Boston is waiving the joiner fee for the month of September, a savings of up to $50.

The Y is one of the nation's leading nonprofits strengthening communities through youth development, healthy living and social responsibility. Serving the communities of Reading, North Reading, Wakefield, Wilmington, and Stoneham, the Burbank YMCA welcomes men, women and children - regardless of age, income or background - to nurture the potential of children and teens, improve the nation's health and well-being, and provide opportunities to give back and support neighbors.

New book helps businesses debunk social media

OKLAHOMA CITY - The social media landscape can be difficult to navigate for time-strapped business owners. So in their new book, "Solving the Social Media Puzzle," authors Kathryn Rose and Apryl Parcher give readers a big-picture overview of the top five social platforms (Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, YouTube, and G+), and define the role business content should play when incorporating one or more of them into a marketing strategy.

The book reveals the best way to integrate a social plan into a company's traditional marketing efforts, where to concentrate those efforts for the best results, and much more. It includes success tips and insights and interviews with some of the brightest minds in the industry.

Rose and Parcher provide a seven-step plan based on real-world experience. This easy-to-read book is not a "how-to" on specific platforms (they Tuesday, anyway); it's an overall strategy guide.

Published by Tate Publishing and Enterprises, the book is available through bookstores nationwide, from the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore, or by visiting barneandnoble.com or amazon.com.

Rose resides in Framingham, Mass, and Parcher calls Chesapeake City, Maryland, home.

Consumer tips on hiring a pest control company for mosquito prevention

MARLBOROUGH

According to the Centers for Disease Control, approximately 75 percent of the West Nile cases reported this year have come from five states: Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, South Dakota and Oklahoma. Almost half of the cases have been reported in Texas. While there are many do-it-yourself steps consumers can take to protect themselves, there is also the option to hire a professional pest control service.

The main method of transmission for the West Nile virus is through the bite of an infected mosquito. But there are many things consumers can do to protect themselves. The Environmental Protection Agency suggests the following:

- Remove any standing water, including water that may be left over in rain gutters, old tires, buckets, plastic covers, toys, bird baths, fountains, wading pools, rain barrels and potted plant trays.

- Replace outdoor lights with yellow 'bug' lights which tend to attract fewer mosquitoes than ordinary lights. The yellow lights are NOT repellents, however.

- Make sure window and door screens are 'bug tight.'
- Use EPA-registered mosquito repellents when necessary.

- Stay inside during the evening, when mosquitoes are most active.

Consumers may also hire a pest control service to help reduce the number of mosquitoes on their property. Pest control services can provide different methods of elimination, such as misting systems or pesticide sprays.

If you're considering hiring a pest control service, BBB suggests the following:

- Research the company and compare prices. Check any pest control company's BBB Business Review before signing a contract. Look at the company's rating, how it has responded to past customer complaints and any advertising issues it may have had. Solicit bids from at least three different pest control companies before making a decision.

- Ask for an inspection. According to many experts in the industry, the first step in reducing mosquitoes is to find the source. A pest control company cannot put together an appropriate plan of action without identifying the source of the problem.

- Ask about the warranty. Some companies will provide re-treatment warranty, meaning if the mosquitoes come back and the problem worsens, they will come back out and re-spray at no additional cost. Make sure you get any warranty in writing.

- Be cautious of guarantees. While pest control companies can help minimize the number of mosquitoes, completely eliminating the pests may not be possible. Be cautious of any company that makes guarantees claiming it can eliminate 100 percent of mosquitoes. This is a red flag.

- Ask about safety and risks. Because pesticides and pest control strategies could be dangerous to touch or directly inhale, be sure to ask the company about the safety of the chemicals it uses. Let the company know if you have pets, children or sensitive plants as that may impact the products it selects for your home.

- Read the fine print. Carefully review any contract before you sign. If you've decided on a monthly treatment plan, make sure that schedule is included in your contract. Pay close attention to termination policies and fees should you decide to stop treatment.

Local school building projects

Tewksbury Memorial High School ready for fall, Wilmington Memorial High School encounters setbacks

By RYAN LAROCHE

Tewksbury and Wilmington have been long-standing rivals on the football field. Now, they're rivals in the classroom. Or, more specifically, the towns' rivalry extends to building a classroom (and the rest of the school building).

Both communities need a new high school. Both received funding from the state and both received the OK from their respective Town Meetings. Today, one school is up and ready to go for the 2012-2013 school year. The other is not quite there yet.

The new Tewksbury Memorial High School opened its doors on Tuesday and welcomed in students for the first time. The new Wilmington High School doesn't quite exist yet. To be fair, there was never a race to see which community could build a high school quicker. Wilmington never planned to get its high school up and ready by 2012. The rivalry comes from how one town (Wilmington) has to deal with residents appealing the project and how the other town (Tewksbury) went from design to completion without so much as a hiccup.

In a sense, it was the best of times for Tewksbury and, while not the worst of times, at least tough times for Wilmington.

The process to build a new high school in Wilmington, which began in December of 2010, started off smoothly. Working with Joslin Lesser and Associates, the High School Building Committee looked at three options: new school, new school with renovated gym or a renovation to the old school. The committee favored a new building but included renovation in the plans sent to the MSBA (Mass. School Building Authority).

Once the committee decided what they wanted, they had to decide where they wanted it. They looked at many site options including across the street from the existing building on 8-10 acres of land, the Wildwood site (5.7 acres of land on Wildwood Street) and Sciarappa Farm (60 acres not owned by the town).

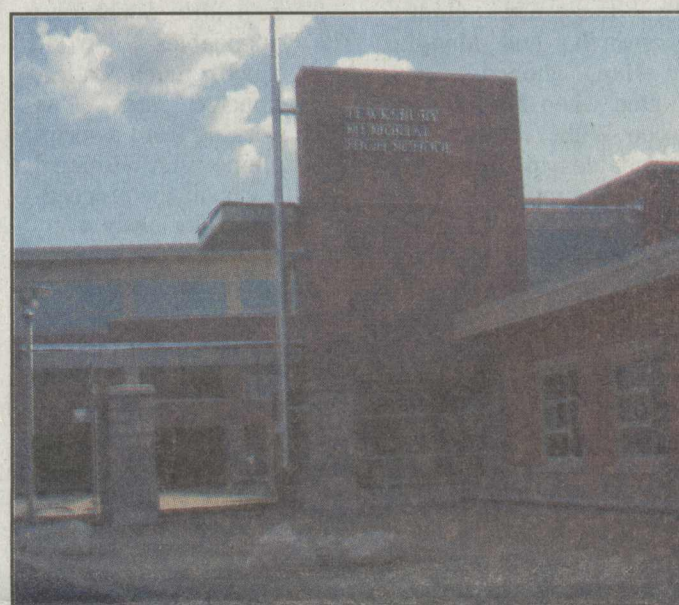

Once the town chose a designer, more options were discussed including renovating the building with an addition, moving the school to Middlesex Avenue, building the school adjacent to the old one either on the Roman House site or elsewhere, and moving the building close to the Town Hall.

The designer, Dore & Whittier, showed the town the pros and cons of each option. Eventually, the building committee removed the options of moving the building to Middlesex Avenue (too small), moving it closer to Town Hall (traffic/access issues), moving it to Sciarappa Farm (owner wanted $7M), and renovating it with an addition (doesn't meet MSBA standards).

After a public forum in April of 2011, the building committee chose the option of building the new school adjacent to the old one. However, they continued to study the possibility of renovating the old high school building.

The next month, after finding out the cost to build a new school would be $81.5M with the MSBA agreeing to pay 52.47 percent, the building committee approved the option to build a new school adjacent to the current school for the MSBA's approval.

By Nov. 16, 2011, the deal was sealed: the final budget clocked in at $83,722,292 (though the MSBA reduced that slightly to $82,688,115 which included $1,125,000 for the feasibility study). The MSBA agreed to pay just over 52 percent leaving the town to pay $44M (a little extra due to utility work, soil remediation and site work). By contrast, the cost to renovate would have been $1.5M more; but with extra reimbursement, as the MSBA prefers communities to renovate, the cost to the town would have remained the same.

For taxpayers, the price will be, on average, $184 for a 20-year bond down to $146 for a 30-year bond (with homeowners paying a little more for the first year and a little less the last year). The average cost to families over 30 years will be $152.96, mostly thanks to the town's AA+ bond rating.

At this point, things seemed to be flowing smoothly. But there was a slight problem lurking under the surface... literally.

Wilmington Ten

In 1984, an underground storage tank at the high school leaked oil. The oil seeped into the soil. Fortunately, according to Town Manager Michael Cairra, the tanks were removed and the contaminated soil and groundwater was remediated. Unfortunately, that wasn't enough for some.

A group calling themselves the Wilmington Ten Resident

Group appealed the project, asking for clean-up of the petroleum contaminated soil.

Said spokesman Kevin MacDonald, "We think the project without this clean-up will do irreparable harm."

MacDonald had appeared at most, if not all, of the building committee's bi-weekly/monthly meetings with questions pertaining to not just the soil, but also to enrollment figures and building specifications. He also said at one point, after learning the current building is not structurally unsound, that it should not be demolished.

To the town's credit, an Activities Use Limitation (AUL) document stated that the area under the school building was stable. Also, presiding officer Timothy Jones said the group's appeal appeared to be based on speculation and conjecture and not hard facts. It was thrown out of court.

The Wilmington Ten also appealed the project to build a new artificial turf field because they felt it would leak carcinogenic chemicals into the soil and groundwater impacting the Ipswich River Basin.

The second appeal, regarding the synthetic field, remains. Another issue the appellants had focused on, the idea that the town did not consider more options when it came to locating the field. Town Counsel Dan Deutsch responded that the town was not obligated to consider every available space in town and, furthermore, that they held public meetings when discussing where to locate the proposed artificial turf field. Finally, Deutsch contended that athletics and education are inseparable and, therefore, it made sense to put the field adjacent to the new school (in a wetlands protected area with

by Paul Feely

"The Expendables 2" fun-filled

"EXPENDABLES 2" IS A DREAM COME TRUE if you're an action buff and would like to see Stallone, Schwarzenegger, Willis and Norris fighting side-by-side one more time. The movie itself is full of action and very enjoyable.

"THE EXPENDABLES 2"
GRADE: ***

The Expendables are back, with action scenes and attitude that are bigger, badder - and funnier - than ever.

Barney Ross (Sylvester Stallone), Lee Christmas (Jason Statham), Yin Yang (Jet Li), Gunnar Jensen (Dolph Lundgren), Toll Road (Randy Couture) and Hale Caesar (Terry Crews) - with newest members Billy the Kid (Liam Hemsworth) and Maggie (Yu Nan) aboard - are reunited when Mr. Church (Bruce Willis) enlists the Expendables to take on a seemingly simple job.

The task looks like an easy paycheck for Barney and his band of old-school mercenaries. But when things go wrong and one of their own is viciously killed, the Expendables are compelled to seek revenge in hostile territory where the odds are stacked against them.

Stallone and his band of aging action heroes haul their battered muscle-bound frames into another old-school adventure riding the nostalgic goodwill fans have for 1980s toughguys all the way to the box office.

If you saw the first film then you know exactly what to expect: frequent bursts of bullets and bloodshed, mixed funny exchanges that recycle the stars' trademark quips. Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger (in a bigger role than his cameo in the previous movie) and Willis are all here, along with Chuck Norris.

This time, Stallone and Statham's gang of mercenaries embark on what should be a simple in-and-out mission to a corner of the former Soviet Union, accompanied by enigmatic Chinese agent Maggie (Yu Nan). Of course, the assignment proves anything but simple. Soon enough the gang are duking it out with hordes of heavies to stop villain Jean-Claude Van Damme laying his hands on six tons of weapons-grade plutonium.

There's little doubt that The Expendables 2 gets off to a much, much better-than-expected start, as West, working from a script by Stallone and Richard Wenk, kicks off the proceedings with a gloriously over-the-top and astoundingly entertaining sequence detailing the Expendables' assault on a small island teeming with armed soldiers.

The film's middle act drags a bit, but the third act is an explosive, action filled firefight. The sight of Stallone fighting alongside Schwarzenegger, Willis, and Norris is every action film buff's dream scene come to life and worth the price of a ticket itself.

"PARANORMAN"
GRADE: ***

This comedy/horror film combines brilliantly crafted stop-motion animation with a campy, dark tale to create fabulous entertainment for audiences of all ages.

"ParaNorman," based on an original script by co-director Chris Butler, is the story of Norman Babcock, a small town boy who's made fun and picked on by everyone, including his family, because he claims (truthfully, as it turns out) to be able to talk with the dead.

It turns out that the town is, unknowingly, living under a curse cast centuries ago by a girl whom the Puritan founders burned as a witch. Norman, it turns out, is descended from a line of 'necromancers' who are able to soothe the spirit of the witch to sleep and prevent her from taking her vengeance. But Norman doesn't learn about his powers until it may be too late to stop the witch from wreaking havoc on the town.

Butler and co-director Sam Fell have terrific fun with this material, using it as a launching pad to poke fun at the conventions of horror movies, at school-age trauma, and at modern family life. The film is filled with humor aimed at tweens, spiced with just the right degree of horror to engage kids who've outgrown "Goosebumps" books but are too young for slasher films.

The animation style Butler and Fell utilize is unlike the normal fare and the blend of stop-motion, CGI and 3D gives the film a unique look that works very well, especially when conveying herky-jerky movements made by the zombies. The human characters are done in exaggerated style for maximum visual humor and their fun designs get the easy laughs, but their expressive animations convey emotions well.

The middle gets a bit clunky and the one point where the script feels like it's treading on familiar animated conventions and clichés instead of continuing down its own unique path, but Butler and Fell really put together a very creative, thoughtful final act that leaves a strong impression. It's such an effective finale that you'll forgive the slower bits.

"ParaNorman" definitely delivers and is easily the most creative animated film this year.

"THE BOURNE LEGACY"
GRADE: **

Can a movie franchise be reborn without Bourne?

That's the question producers of the Jason Bourne movie franchise were left with after star Matt Damon and director Paul Greengrass (Bourne Supremacy, Bourne Ultimatum) refused to return for another installment of the highly lucrative action trilogy.

The Bourne Legacy is a cross between a series reboot and a sequel to the original franchise, with the co-writer of the first three films, Tony Gilroy, sitting in the director's chair for the first time. The results are mostly entertaining, even if this newest installment doesn't quite stand up to the original.

Running in parallel to the first three movies, The Bourne Legacy focuses on CIA agent Eric Byer's (Edward Norton) attempt to shut down the government's secret Outcome program - a chemical-based offshoot of the process that created Jason Bourne - by killing its key scientists and all the super agents it produced. He's forced to do this because Damon's Bourne has made public the agency's Treadstone program.

One of the agents marked for execution is Aaron Cross (Jeremy Renner), who survives the attempt on his life and then fakes his death. This buys him time to track down biochemist Dr. Marta Shearing (Rachel Weisz) and enlist her aid in getting him the drugs he needs to keep his abilities.

Gilroy's inability to handle fight sequences is apparent in a 20 minute motorcycle chase in the third act of the film. You can see what Gilroy's trying to do, but he doesn't have the skill to pull it off. It's a chaotic mess.

2-mile Health Walk and 5K Road Race for GBS

The Middlesex GBS/CIDP Support Group, Inc. is hosting a 2-mile Health Walk & 5k Road Race around Horn Pond in Woburn on Sunday, September 16th.

Woburn resident Patricia Morgan, who has personally been battling GBS and is President of Middlesex GBS/CIDP Support Group, Inc. said, "This event means that Middlesex GBS CIDP support group gains valuable exposure."

GBS is a very rare disorder and for the most part, is unknown to the population at large. The sudden onset of this disorder often leaves survivors and their families devastated. Getting reliable information and support immediately is crucial to coping with GBS and CIDP."

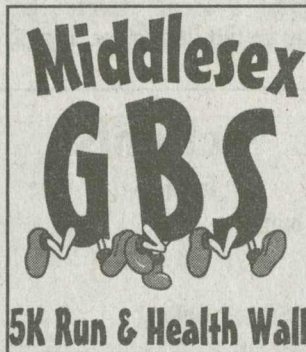

Morgan continued, "The focus of the Middlesex GBS CIDP support group is to provide information and support to both the families and the survivors through meetings, therapies and resources. This is done on a local level and provided through a network of rehabilitation facilities in the area."

The mission of GBS/CIDP Support Group, Inc. is to raise awareness of GBS (Guillain-Barre Syndrome), a disorder in which the body's immune system attacks part of the peripheral nervous system. Guillain-Barre Syndrome can be a devastating disorder because of its sudden and unexpected onset.

CIDP is the chronic form of GBS. The purpose of the support group is to provide support for GBS and CIDP survivors, family and friends.

Runners and walkers will receive a T-shirt from the event and are encouraged to preregister. Costs for participants 18 and older who preregister is $20.00. Cost for participants 18 and older who register the day of the event is $25.00.

Cost for participants 6-17 years old who preregister is $10.00. Cost for participants 6-17 years old who register the day of the event is $15.00.

Children under 6 free (no t-shirt).

What is GBS?

Guillain-Barre Syndrome (GBS) is a very rare inflammatory disorder of the peripheral nerves outside the brain and spinal cord. It is characterized by the rapid onset of weakness and, often, paralysis of the legs, arms, breathing muscles and face.

The event starts at 9 a.m. at the parking lot beside the new dam between the Upper and Lower Mystic Lakes on Mystic Valley Parkway in Medford.

The centerpiece of the event will be a paddle on the Mysitc from the dam to Alewife Brook and back. Bring a canoe or kayak or reserve one at www.MysitcRiver.org.

A bicycle tour will begin along the same route and then explore more of the watershed. There will also be a variety of musicians at various

Multi-directional (Burlington)

"The Board of Selectmen recently gave conditional approval to a proposal by the Simon Properties, owners of the Burlington Mall, to locate six traffic signs in the area in order to direct motorists to alternate means of accessing routes 3 and 128," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The mall would pay for installation, maintenance, and replacement of the signs, which are designed to be particularly useful during the holiday season and on busy Saturdays.

"Approval is subject to Inspector of Buildings John Clancy examining zoning issues and Police Safety Officer Bernie Schipelliti endorsing placement of the signs.

"Three signs on Mall Road would direct drivers to access Route 128 by way of the Cambridge Street interchange as opposed to adding to already difficult traffic conditions on Middlesex Turnpike. In an effort to achieve the same goal, three additional signs would be placed on the turnpike, Network Drive, and Route 62 directing motorists to Route 3 by way of Route 62.

"Rick Tonzi, who is moving from general manager of the Burlington Mall to the same position at the Simon-owned South Shore Mall, said the signs should help motorists who are directed by police away from the turnpike area. He said some motorists do not immediately see signs for Route 128 or Route 3 and double back to the mall area.

"The town's Traffic Advisory Committee has endorsed placement of the signs.

"Tonzi said the mall is going out to bid to have the signs installed.

"Conditional approval for the new signs was unanimous."

GATEWAY HARMONY (WILMINGTON)

"Teaching is a kind of performance," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"Thus, it makes sense that Chris Barletta, a former Wilmington teacher and Ipswich native, would work to juggle both.

"Barletta graduated from the Boston Conservatory, where he studied music education, and started work in Wilmington in 2000.

"I taught theater; I taught chorus, and I taught public speaking," he said.

"He left in 2002 after just two years, but said that there was much to enjoy in Wilmington...

"Barletta however left Wilmington to pursue a dream, moving to Florida and, according to a press release issued by the Stoneham Theater, to become a member of Disney's Voices of Liberty and the Dapper Dans.

"I love choral music and harmony"... "I've been down here for 11 years, now," he said...."

But he returned to New England recently to perform in 'Let's Hang On! A Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons Tribute Show' at the Stoneham Theater.

'NOT DEAD YET' (WOBURN)

...according to the headline in the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"More than 10 years after it was unveiled at a raucous meeting at the old Woburn Memorial High School, the project to expand the notorious cloverleaf connecting I-93 and Route 128 isn't dead, but it's not moving forward quickly, either," notes the 'Daily Times Chronicle.'

"According to MassDOT, the state's transportation agency, the project is slated for construction funding sometime between 2026-30, when the cost could exceed $500 million.

"In the meantime, environmental work continues at the site in preparation for the project, construction of which will primarily impact Woburn, Reading, Wakefield and Stoneham, but will have effects from Boston to New Hampshire, and from Waltham to the North Shore.

"The dangerousness of the intersection was underscored as recently as Monday night, when a car and a tanker truck collided, spilling some 8,000 gallons of fuel onto Route 128 just south of I-93. Public safety crews scrambled to contain the fuel, averting what could have been a major disaster.

"I haven't heard a lot about the (interchange project) but maybe something like this will get the discussion moving again," said Woburn Mayor Scott Galvin. "There's a delicate balance between making that area safer for the people who have to travel through there and for the residents who live there'...."

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: Who owns the NFL record for most interceptions in a half?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•The UMass Lowell women's soccer team, slated No. 17 in the NSCAA Division II Preseason Rankings, was selected third in the Northeast-10 Conference Preseason Coaches Poll.

"We have to remember that games have yet to be played so the poll is based on last season's success," said head coach Elie Monteiro. "Having said that, the team is very focussed and motivated to exceed last years' regular season finishing position."

UMass Lowell went 11-6-4 overall and 10-3-2 in Northeast-10 Conference (third place) in 2011 which saw it advance to the NCAA Tournament East Region Championship match - its best NCAA showing in five trips - where it fell to national champion Saint Rose, 2-1.

Saint Rose (24-1-1, 13-1-1 in the NE-10) was picked to win the regular season while Merrimack (16-4-2, 11-2-1 NE-10) was picked second. Southern Connecticut (10-5-3, 8-4-3 NE-10) was picked fourth and was followed by Franklin Pierce (6-8-3, 4-8-3 NE-10), Southern New Hampshire (10-8-2, 7-6-2), Stonehill (11-7-2, 8-5-2 NE-10) and Adelphi (8-8-1, 7-7-1 NE-10).

American International College (7-9-2, 6-7-2 NE-10) and the University of New Haven (9-8-0, 7-8-0 NE-10) rounded out the top 10.

UMass Lowell returns 14 veterans and six starters for the 2012 season, including NE-10 Rookie of the Year and First Team standout Brittany Russo (Danvers, Mass.), who SOPHOMORE GOAL-KEEPER JANE HATZIKONSTANTIS (TEWKSBURY, MASS.), cited to the NE-10 All-Rookie Team with Russo, returns alongside junior goalkeeper Jill Carlson (Lexington, Mass.), who split time between the woodwork. The two keepers combined for nine clean sheets and a 0.45 goals against average while conceding only 17 goals.

Monteiro also welcomes back seniors Jenna Costa (Attleboro, Mass.), who chipped in one goal and six assists on the wing; as well as defenders Taylor Hartmann (Feeding Hills, Mass.), a NE-10 Second Team standout, and Casey Schulze (Chelmsford, Mass.), who each played a pivotal role on UMass Lowell's defense.

UMass Lowell opens the season Friday, Aug. 31 as it hosts the River Hawk Classic. LIU Post (formerly C.W. Post) meets AIC at 4:00 while the River Hawks meet Bridgeport at 7:00.

Smooth sailing

Meanwhile, one town over, as Wilmington was dealing with two appeals to the high school project, Tewksbury was putting the finishing touches on its own project. Tewksbury Memorial High School will be open to the community on Saturday, September 8, from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. Students showed up yesterday.

It all started two years ago in early 2010 when Town Meeting overwhelmingly supported funding for a new high school. The High School Building Committee and the MSBA agreed to build the school on Pleasant Street right next to the old one. Soon, the old building will be razed so that a parking lot can take its place.

Originally, the town budgeted $82M for the project. Thanks to the poor economy, bids came in well below that price. In fact, the town will save $15M, because the final price for everything came in at $67M. With the MSBA covering 60.06 percent, the town will end up owing just under $31M.

The 22-month long project turned out great, according to Town Manager Richard Montuori. In all honesty, he felt it turned out even better than he could have imagined.

Montuori toured the school on Monday, the same day teachers moved in. So far, it's been nothing but great reports.

"We are exceptionally proud of the opening of our new high school," School Committee chair Krissy Polimeno told the Town Crier. "This is an exciting time for Tewksbury."

The new school boasts a new gymnasium, a state-of-the-art television studio, and a new auditorium, named after Dr. Christine L. McGrath, the previous superintendent who served for 19 years and spearheaded the effort to build the new school.

Demolition of the old school, built in the 1950s, began August 20 and will last into the school year. A fence separates the two buildings.

Montuori said the old building just no longer met the needs of the town due to its size. Clearly residents were ready to move on, as 2,000 people packed the largest Town Meeting ever on March 1, 2010 to overwhelmingly pass the school. Five days later, 6,186 voters came out in support by passing the borrowing measure.

If the new Tewksbury Memorial High School looks familiar, there's a reason for that. It's a model school, meaning it was modeled after another high school - Hudson High School. Because of that, the MSBA reimbursed the town more than usual. This is something they do for all model schools.

With the town paying relatively little for the new building, did it get what it paid for?

"We definitely got our monies worth," exclaimed Montuori. "And then some."

Moving forward

While one town praises a brand new high school, the other waits and hopes it can get shovels into dirt this year.

Wilmington Superintendent Joanne Benton said the appellants (the Wilmington Ten) hearing is scheduled for October 25. If things go the town's way, she wants to start demolishing the gym as soon as possible (it was originally set to be demolished this summer) so construction on the new building can begin. Once it goes up, the old one comes down to make way for a parking lot.

However, and this is where the but comes in, even if the appellants lose, Benton said they could still take the town to court, which could hold up the proceedings another three to six months causing a full one year delay. And, that could cost the town $3M, which would necessitate a Town Meeting vote to release the additional money.

The superintendent called the whole process disappointing and said residents were being punished by this appeal.

"It's unfortunate, because (residents) overwhelmingly supported this," she said.

In fact, the school passed 1,426-31 at Town Meeting.

North Reading recently approved the construction of a new middle and high school. Woburn built a new high school early in the last decade while Reading renovated and rebuilt their high school. The work on the Winchester high school feasibility study is proceeding according to plan.

September openings at Odyssey Day School still available

"I tried three other child care centers before finding Odyssey Day School. Odyssey is more than a child care center or a school: it is an authentic community, built on the kind of values that I want to teach my children, such as honesty, trust, fairness, diversity, and the importance of continuing to stretch, learn, and grow. I have watched my children become ever more confident and happy over the past year, as they blossom and flourish under the exceptional care of their teachers". - Parent

Odyssey Day School believes all children need and deserve a safe, nurturing and stimulating educational environment where developmental needs, personal interests and talents, and individual learning styles can be addressed. With small classes, a high ratio of teachers to students, flexible student groupings and a differentiated approach to curriculum planning Odyssey is able to provide the personalized attention children need in order to experience success and develop a joy for learning.

Together, the students and teachers embark on an educational odyssey which sets the stage for the children to become independent thinkers able to meet intellectual challenges with curiosity and confidence. The dynamic, theme-based integrated curriculum is the basis of a highly motivating and challenging educational program that includes a strong academic foundation complemented by experiences in the arts, technology and athletics.

Odyssey Day School promotes a strong sense of community to help children learn to be responsible for themselves and respectful of others. Diversity within the school community is appreciated, as it enriches all members of the community. Because it is crucial to the successful school experience, open communication between families, staff and students is valued and encouraged.

Odyssey Day School's curriculum is theme-based. All students in the school embark on an annual "odyssey," a school-wide theme that guides the curriculum planning for the year. In the spring, the faculty gathers to propose, discuss and choose a theme for the following year. The school's theme flows from a topic or concept considered to be central to the needs and interests of the students, and this supports the philosophy of the school.

Odyssey Day School is an independent school for boys and girls ages infant through eighth grade. It provides student-centered, developmentally-appropriate programs and activities to support the intellectual, creative, social/emotional and physical development of a diverse population of learners. Odyssey Day School's policies and programs are responsive to the needs of families and promote accessibility to families at all income levels. Toddler, Preschool and Kindergarten students are generally accepted on a first-come, space available basis if they are well-matched to our educational program. Families must visit and tour the school with their child before starting. Previous school records, a mandatory day visit, and other application materials for elementary applicants must also be completed before an admissions decision is determined.

School tours are available at any time; contact the office to schedule a visit.

Shortcuts for parents for fast weeknight meals

Most people are busy balancing family life and careers. This can make mealtime challenging. Sometimes it seems easier to go through the drive-through lane of the nearest fast-food restaurant than to spend time in the kitchen. But making dinner doesn't have to be time-consuming or difficult.

Arriving home from work at 6:30 p.m. and then thinking about making dinner leaves many people feeling stressed out. It is possible to create healthy meals the entire family will enjoy with planning and smart time management in the kitchen.

Here are some tips that can make for easier meals in a snap.

* Mark the calendar. Sure it may seem like a page right out of the school cafeteria operations, but planning at least two weeks of meals in advance can alleviate the toughest part of meal creation - deciding on the menu. This enables a person to shop for all of the ingredients and stock up the pantry and the refrigerator. Come mealtime, it's simply grab and cook.

* Prep in advance. Some people like to spend Sunday afternoon pre-cooking items that will be used during the week. For example, one can bake chicken cutlets that can be used for a variety of meals later on. Or slice and dice items so that the preparatory work is done. Package into individual baggies or bowls for later use. Sometimes the longest time spent on meals is the prep work.

* Take some shortcuts. Not every meal that is cooked needs to be entirely from scratch. Mix fresh-made elements with store-bought options. For example, serve barbecued flank steak with prepared salad greens from your grocer's refrigerated section and cornbread from their bakery.

* Consider breakfast foods. Breakfast foods tend to cook faster and with less prep work than others. One night a week serve pancakes, French toast, omelettes, or Belgian waffles. It's easy and

Simple ideas

You are what you eat: Brain-friendly foods for kids

A child who is well nourished is better able to perform in school and in everyday activities. Adults have long heard that breakfast is the most important meal of the day – and it continues to be so. However, some foods are better options than others.

The human brain is an amazing organ. It requires a large number of nutrients, including vitamins, minerals and amino acids, to produce neurotransmitters and other important brain compounds. A lack of nutrients can result in chemical abnormalities and missed connections. It only takes a small deficit in nutrition to potentially cause an entire host of health and behavioral issues.

Poor nutrition can affect the behavior of children, their attendance at school, performance in the classroom, and overall development, say experts. That is why it is essential that children consume healthy, regular meals throughout the day. It is also why so many schools have implemented government- or private-funded nutrition programs to ensure kids get the foods they need.

Breakfast Bonanza

Ideal meals offer a balance of complex carbohydrates and protein. When preparing breakfast, it's easy to make sure kids get what they need if you follow a simple rule: dairy + grains + fruit, and vary the combinations. The following are some healthy breakfasts to consider.

- * cream cheese on a whole-grain bagel, served with orange juice
- * a vegetarian omelette with whole-wheat toast spread with fresh fruit preserves
- * sweet potato pancakes topped with blueberries and served with low-fat chocolate milk
- * scrambled eggs, an English muffin and apple juice
- * whole grain cereal with yogurt and sliced strawberries
- * an on-the-go smoothie, made from yogurt, fruit and juice

Carbs are Key

The brain requires a lot of energy (by way of sugars) to run, making healthy carbohydrates the key to improved brain performance. Brain-friendly foods are those with beneficial sugars that are low on the glycemic index. Foods with a low glycemic index do not push the pancreas to secrete so much insulin, so the blood sugar tends to be steadier, and a child will not have the highs and lows associated with a sugar rush. Here are some foods to consider.

* Choose fruits such as grapefruit, apples, cherries, oranges, and grapes. When selecting between fruits and fruit juices, keep in mind that the fiber in whole fruit slows down the absorption of fruit sugars. So whole fruits are better for the brain than simply juice.

* Bran and oatmeal cereals are healthy for the body and the brain. Not only does their high fiber content promote digestive regularity and possibly reduce cholesterol levels, but the low glycemic index of these foods make them brain friendly. Plus, they help promote a feeling of fullness.

* Legumes have some of the lowest glycemic indexes of any foods. Soybeans, kidney beans, chick peas, and lentils are some considerations. While not exactly breakfast foods, they can be incorporated into lunches and dinners to promote brain function throughout the day.

* Low-fat dairy products, such as milk and yogurt, are very healthy for the brain and body.

* DHA (Docosahexaenoic acid) is an essential fatty acid that is linked to brain development and health. It is now included in prenatal vitamins and infant formulas to help developing baby brains. It is also an important component for the brain development of older children. DHA can be found in fish such as tuna, salmon and mackerel. DHA supplements can also be found in the vitamin aisle.

Dietary experts also encourage children to "graze" throughout the day on the healthy foods mentioned so they keep their food fuel levels at an optimal level. Otherwise they may crash and start to feel sluggish or tired.

Meals From S-5

tasty.

* Invest in a slow cooker. Slow cookers cook food on very low heat for several hours. Many now feature programmable displays so a person can punch in the cook time and the slow cooker will automatically shut off when done. Individuals can come home after a long day of work and school with an entire meal fully cooked and ready to eat.

* Stir-fry satisfies. Meats and poultry cut into smaller strips and pieces will cook much faster than an entire steak. Pair this with favorite flavors, such as ginger and teriyaki and seasonal vegetables (fresh or frozen) and serve over rice or noodles. There are dozens of stir-fry recipes a person can create with a little experimentation.

* Have leftover night. One night of the week can be set aside for leftovers to clean out the refrigerator. Simply reheat and serve, letting each member of the family concoct a buffet-style meal, featuring a little of this and a little of that.

Back-to-school party ideas

Back-to-school season is on the horizon, and many students and parents are either loving or loathing the idea of starting a new school year. For some, a party to commemorate the new school year and the end of summer is customary. Hosting a fun event for the soon-to-be students is one way to make the most of vacation time.

* Go with a theme. Maybe the theme is rulers and text books, ABCs, or science, and it can run through the decorations used, the games played, the food served, and many other aspects of the event. Consider a science experiment inspired volcano cake that is oozing strawberry jam.

* Include some educational games. Some students experience educational backsliding during summer vacation. That is why many schools have summer reading lists that educators feel promote lesson reinforcement for the coming school year. With this in mind, plan activities around concepts children learned in school. Think about math problem relay races, art projects, reading a story and reenacting it in a play form, or science experiments using solar energy.

* Host a campout reading marathon. Encourage guests to bring sleeping bags and favorite books to a campout under the stars. Most of the time can be spent reading while breaks can be devoted to exercising, making campout snacks or telling campfire stories.

* Rent out a fun bus or truck. Since many students will be spending a good deal of time on a school bus once the new school year commences, tie into those jaunts to school by renting the services of a game bus or truck. Some vendors will park their vehicles in front of the house for an hour or more, allowing children to climb inside and enjoy themselves on play equipment or compete in video game competitions inside specialized gaming trucks.

* Plan a group event at the beach. Spending time seaside can be educational and enjoyable at the same time. Enlist the help of a few chaperones and set up an area on the beach where kids can play and explore the wonders of nature around them. Pack picnic-type snacks or ask attendees to bring items themselves.

* Plan a trip to the school. First-time students may be anxious about what to expect during their first days of school. Having friends who are slightly older accompany younger kids to school to give a tour and show them the ropes make the experience less frightening. Afterward, meet at a pizzeria to enjoy some slices and soda.

* Host a classic pool party. Of course, some kids want to commemorate the end of summer vacation by enjoying the pool one last time. Have a classic pool party and barbecue in the yard for everyone to enjoy.

Safety first at the jungle gym

Many an hour has been spent in a backyard climbing, swinging and sliding on a jungle gym playset. While jungle gyms can be a source of endless recreation for youngsters, they also can be dangerous.

Jungle gyms foster physical activity, fine motor coordination and cooperative play. Many parents find having a playset is an advantage when encouraging kids to spend more time outdoors and less time in front of the television. Although there are many fun times to be had scrambling and climbing, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that each year around 200,000 children under the age of 14 are admitted to hospitals due to playground-related injuries. The CDC further estimates that around half of these injuries include severe fractures, concussions, dislocations, internal injuries, and amputations.

A recent study on the safety of home jungle gym sets found playground injuries are more likely to be severe when they occur at home. Researchers reviewed the circumstances behind nearly 40,000 playground injuries to children ages 3 to 12 who were treated in Canadian emergency rooms from 1995 to 2008. Although the rate of injury on public playgrounds was higher than at home, kids who got hurt at home had a 30 percent greater chance of remaining in the hospital for their injuries and were nearly 50 percent more likely to break a bone, especially the leg.

Landing surfaces in and around a jungle gym is a leading reason why home injuries may be more serious. Home play sets typically do not have impact-absorbing material that can help prevent major injuries. It is vital that the surface of the gym be lined with an ample amount of absorbent material. The surface should extend six feet from the edge of the equipment and be a minimum of three feet deep. Sand, mulch, pea gravel, or shredded rubber are all good types of impact-absorbing materials.

In addition to ensuring adequate surface cushioning against falls, there are other safety precautions that can help prevent injuries.

even home office, with another door that feeds into the secondary bedroom wing. The kitchen/family room is through an arch straight ahead of the foyer, while another arched opening on the left leads into the living room and dining room.

The owners' suite anchors the left end of a long transverse hallway that accesses all of the gathering spaces before ending at a skylit octagonal hub in the secondary bedroom wing on the right. This hub is like a traffic circle. Doors and hallways lead off in four directions, to the three-car garage, bedrooms, a two-section bathroom, a large utility room with exterior access, and back to the family gathering spaces.

Kitchen features include a large walk-in closet and a multi-angled work island rimmed by an eating bar. Windows fill five sides of a vaulted nook. Sliding doors link it to a vaulted patio.

A smaller covered patio is just outside the Meadow Lake's luxurious owners' suite. Other amenities include a deep walk-in closet, plus a private bathroom brightened by two windows and a solar tube.
